Message Title: You Are Not Ready Yet

Greetings to You All,

While I sit in my enlightened state, I have come to realize you are not ready. You're not ready to have a mate, for you have not found who you are. You must learn who you are before you accept a mate and you must not accept this mate until you have learned who they are. Some of you seek out a soul mate, this is not the way of the Christ. You seek out your twin flame, connect and illuminate one another with each flame as it glows and illuminates. Once this occurs, you have created a torch of flaming light that bonds your souls together for all eternity, but wait, you are not ready. Focus on who you are. Remove the inner doubt and disbelief of who you are. Remove the insecurities you manifest every day. Allow yourself to be happy, for if you bring this soul into a time you are not ready, the opportunity will be lost and the relationship will be short. Be patient my students and allow yourself to know, discern and learn who and what you are, and what you need and want. Know the truth of who you wish to be and bring that to you in a mate. Be willing to express yourself in the vibration of truth and be willing to listen to this potential mate as they express themselves as well. Be happy, but wait, you are not ready. How can you be ready when you are miserable every day? How can you be ready when you dwell on that which makes you unhappy? How can you be ready if you manifest dysfunction in your reality you call life? You can heal, but wait, are you ready? If your answer is yes, then begin without doubt and go up the road of resolution and truth of knowing. And then the doors will open and you will finally find that which you have been looking for many lifetimes. You will find it impossible in this vibration to stop laughing, to stop smiling. There will never be an experience or a thought that is negative. But wait, I know in my heart you are truly ready. My dearest students, I Lord Gautama Buddha, say unto you, you have always had the power to find the truth as Dorothy did with the ruby slippers. You are my light and you will always shine, and if you fall now you can learn to stand up again and arise in thanks for the opportunities. I go now in peace, but wait, I will always be with you.
